A person wearing a green shirt and a brown cap is seen from the side, working in a tea plantation. They are carrying a large, round, woven basket on their back and using a blue-handled tool to harvest tea leaves. The background shows rolling green hills under a blue sky with white clouds.

Charming Cameron Highlands

There is much to see and do in Cameron Highlands, the largest of Malaysia's highland resorts. Be it walks through lovely little villages and charming butterfly, strawberry and honey bee farms, or visits to delightful Tudor-style country inns and sprawling tea plantations, this resort will captivate you with its rustic charm. Situated 1,500m above sea level, about a two hours' drive from Kuala Lumpur, Cameron Highlands comprises a series of little townships that include Ringlet, Tanah Rata, Brinchang, Tringkap, Kuala Terla and Kampung Raja.

The Adventure Begins

The journey from the foot of the hill to the summit is an adventure in itself. You can get there via the town of Tapah or through the new highway at Simpang Pulai. The route via Tapah takes you past natural waterfalls, hot springs, Orang Asli (indigenous people) villages, religious shrines, souvenir shops, roadside markets and much more. A quick stop at Kuala Woh, unveils a recreational park with natural hot springs, while further on at Chenderiang, and Lata Iskandar, beautiful cascading waterfalls beckon.

Ringlet

Ringlet, the first of the Cameron Highlands townships lies 1,135m above sea level. If you are driving, you will probably want to stop here for petrol and to take in the surrounding attractions that include a market, a temple, a magnificent Tudor-style hotel called The Lakehouse, and several delightful flower nurseries. A right turn just after Habu will lead you past a multitude of vegetable farms and straight to the sprawling Boh Tea Estate where you can tour the Boh factory and indulge in a cup of hot tea. If you are feeling a little adventurous, you may want to get off the beaten track and try the Dayang Endah trail that will lead you to the Robinson Waterfall. These hills also offer a host of other trails that involve either a gentle stroll or a half-day trek for the very fit.

Back on the main road to Tanah Rata, you will come across the Cameron Bharat Tea Plantation and the Tea Shop with its unique souvenirs, scrumptious scones and more tea. In the valley below, the enchanting dark green terraces of the tea plantation are the perfect backdrop for a photo.

Tanah Rata

At 1,300m above sea level, the main township of Tanah Rata offers attractions like the Nine Emperor God Temple, the Parit Waterfall, a Hindu temple and the Rainbow Garden. There is no lack of accommodation here as you can choose from a range of first class hotels, motels and apartments. If you want to experience a bit of nostalgia, drop by Bala's Holiday Chalet or the Smokehouse Hotel, both reminiscent of country inns. The Smokehouse Hotel has managed to retain much of its country house charm complete with latticed windows, wooden beams and rose garden with white iron-wrought garden furniture. Its interiors, filled with antiques from a bygone era, portraits of the British Royal family, rich dark carpets, heavy sofas and four-poster beds, complete the pretty picture.

Brinchang Beckons

Five kilometres up the road is Brinchang, the highest-lying township in Cameron Highlands. Its attractions include a Sikh temple, the ornate Sam Poh Temple, numerous amenities and a handicraft centre. Golf enthusiasts will enjoy teeing off at the 18-hole Cameron Highlands Golf Club, the only course on the hill.

The nearby Cactus Valley, which features thousands of cacti on display, also boasts a comprehensive variety of plants and foliage as well as apple trees, passion fruit and other temperate climate fruits. Several strawberry farms dot the area. Some grow strawberries organically in coconut husks placed on stilt-like platforms off the ground. Here you can pay a small fee to pick fresh succulent strawberries or simply purchase the assortment of homemade jam or dried strawberries.

A short distance away, the Multicrops Central Market and Kea Farm offer you fresh highland produce at a fraction of city prices. From big ripe brinjals and juicy avocados, to multi-coloured dried flowers and dainty little souvenirs, you will want to spend some time here exploring the many delightful finds.

On your descent, stop by the Butterfly Farm and Butterfly Garden to view the many beautiful species, including the renowned Raja Brooke. Nearby, strategically placed giant comic replicas of honey bees will lead you to the Ee Feng Gu Honey Bee Farm. Here you can view bees gathering pollen amidst the plush sweet scented gardens and orchards, as well as savour and purchase bottles of pure honey. Do also drop by the adjacent Rose Valley where about 450 varieties of roses flourish.

On the left of the Butterfly Farm is the picturesque Sungai Palas Boh Tea Estate. Stop by at the factory to learn about tea processing or watch an audio visual presentation and sample some Cameronian tea. The same road leads you to Gunung Brinchang, reputedly the highest road in Peninsular Malaysia at 2,000m above sea level. Enjoy the panoramic views from the mountaintop.

Getting to the Highlands

Cameron Highlands is accessible either via Tapah or the new highway at Simpang Pulai. If you are driving up from Kuala Lumpur, the Simpang Pulai exit is another 45 minutes north of Tapah along the North-South Expressway. The ascent along this route is much smoother and less precarious than the route from Tapah.

Bus and taxi services are available from the Pudu Sentral bus terminal in Kuala Lumpur and take you all the way up to Tanah Rata. Alternatively, take a train to Tapah and then continue your journey via taxi or bus up to Tanah Rata.

Practical Tips

Cameron Highlands offers many delightful jungle trails for nature lovers. However, during poor weather conditions, please consult your hotel or guesthouse on the suitability of the trails before embarking on your trek.

It is advisable that you begin earlier in the day and not late in the afternoon, as some of these walks may take up to a few hours, and you may not finish before nightfall. Do inform your hosts or local authorities of the route you are taking, and when you plan to get back.

The Descent

If you came up the hill via Tapah, you may want to try the newer Simpang Pulai route on your descent to Highway Exit 137 leading to the North-South Expressway. This new 59-kilometre road is a pleasant scenic drive as the turns are not so tight. On the way down, you will pass the Blue Valley Tea Estate and the townships of Tringkap, Kuala Terla and Kampung Raja as well as farming communities living on the hillside.

The enchanting views of the Peninsular's main mountain range and the luxuriant mist-filled forests, will take your breath away.

Nostalgic Fraser's Hill

Sitting pretty amidst the Pahang rainforests is the little hamlet of Fraser's Hill. At 1,524m above sea level, this highland resort is a naturalists' paradise boasting innumerable plant, bird and animal species. This resort is popular with those who are interested in gentler nature-based pursuits such as trekking, bird watching, horse riding, fishing and camping.

Origins

Fraser's Hill owes its name to a Scottish trader, Louis James Fraser, who established a tin ore trading station in the forested mountains between the Selangor-Pahang border at the end of the 19th century. Fraser was known to have used a mule train to ascend the hill and trade in tin ore until the fateful day that he mysteriously disappeared in the dense forested hills. A search was mounted for Fraser but he was never found. However, the potential of the hills as a cool getaway was uncovered. The hills were surveyed and eventually developed into a hill retreat named after the missing Scotsman in 1919.

Access to Fraser's Hill is only possible by road via the 'Gap' at the base of the resort. Once you get through the Gap and into Fraser's Hill proper, you will feel as though you have gone back in time to a bygone era. Fraser's Hill is akin to a little Scottish village with granite-coloured, mock-Tudor buildings dotting the landscape. The town proper is relatively small, with much of the activity centred on a market square dominated by a little clock tower. Most of the town's amenities are housed in colonial-style buildings.

The Scottish charm has been carefully replicated elsewhere throughout the resort so as to harmonise with the environment. From Ye Olde Smokehouse's country home ambience to the many Tudor-style public rest houses and privately owned bungalows, right up to the Paddock housing the resort's horses and the myriad flower gardens, the colonial influence is evident everywhere.

To support the many conservation efforts being carried out in this naturalists' paradise, the Fraser's Hill Nature Education Centre (FHNEC) was set up in 1997. Sitting smack in the centre of town, it should be the first stop for those looking to learn more about the resort and its abundant flora and fauna. To maintain the relatively unspoiled beauty, FHNEC and various other parties are undertaking conservation efforts to preserve the eight scenic nature trails in the vicinity.

Considered one of Malaysia's premier locations for bird watching, this hill resort hosts the annual Fraser's Hill International Bird Race. This bird watching competition requires bird watchers to race against time to spot as many bird species as possible within the resort's routes.

Visitors to Fraser's Hill have an abundance of relaxing activities to indulge in. From a game of golf at the 9-hole Royal Fraser's Hill Golf Club or the 18-hole Fraser's Hill Golf & Country Club to fishing and boating at Allan's Water, from strolls among the many beautiful flower gardens and parks to splashing about in the icy cold Jeriau Waterfalls, there are enough leisurely pursuits to keep you busy. Accommodation at Fraser's Hill includes serviced apartments, medium to large bungalows and hotels.

Up and Down Fraser's Hill

Fraser's Hill is an hour and a half away from Kuala Lumpur by car. En route, you will pass the town of Kuala Kubu Bharu and the journey thereafter will take approximately 45 minutes along a winding stretch of road. When you arrive at the foot of Fraser's Hill, you will need to stop at the 'Gap', a stretch that utilises a gate control system to regulate the flow of ascending and descending traffic according to a fixed schedule.

Because the road is very narrow, uphill traffic is allowed at odd hours from 7.00am to 7.00pm while downhill traffic is allowed at even hours from 8.00am to 6.00pm. During these times, traffic is only allowed through for the first 40 minutes of each hour (no traffic is allowed through in the last 20 minutes). This 20-minute buffer acts as a safety measure to ensure all vehicles have adequate time to get to their destinations. Traffic between 8.00pm and 6.40am is not controlled and the gate remains open on both lanes of the Gap.

Bus, Taxi and Train Services

Direct bus services from Kuala Lumpur (KL) to Kuala Kubu Bharu (KKB) are currently unavailable. You have to take a bus from the Puduraya bus terminal or board Metrobus no. 43 to Rawang at the bus stop near Bangkok Bank, along Jalan Tun H. S. Lee. Once you arrive in Rawang, catch Metrobus no. 36 to Tanjung Malim that will make a stop at the KKB bus station. From there, you can charter a taxi to Fraser's Hill for approximately RM70.

Another option is to take the KTM Komuter train from KL Sentral, disembark at the Rawang station and catch the half-hourly train service to KKB. You can take a taxi to the hill resort from the station for about the same fare. For more information, call the Fraser's Hill Development Corporation Information Centre.

Practical Tips

While the drive up the hill is a pleasant one, the winding roads can give passengers motion sickness. You may want to roll down the windows for some fresh air and drive a bit slower. If you are descending the hill in the evening, do stop to take in the spectacular sunset amidst the nearby Kuala Selangor Dam. Aim to drive up the hill in the daytime, as the winding roads can be quite precarious.

Tranquil Bukit Larut

Bukit Larut, the smallest hill resort in Malaysia, towers over Taiping, famous for its lake gardens. The unique thing about this hillside resort is that nature has been left alone to flourish so bountifully. Gazetted as a permanent forest reserve in 1910, Bukit Larut's untouched montane forests are filled with bird life while squirrels and gibbons roam around freely. This resort is especially popular with nature lovers, bird watchers, day trippers and others looking for a tranquil getaway.

Bukit Larut, perched 1,250m above sea level, was formerly called Maxwell Hill.

It derived its name from George Maxwell, a British Resident of Perak who set up the hill station about a hundred years ago to serve as a cool retreat for colonial officials from the humidity of the lowlands. With Taiping's lush greenery, giant trees and placid lakes, it is easy to see why Maxwell chose this hill. Before you ascend the hill, it is worthwhile to visit Taiping's many attractions such as the Taiping Zoo and Night Safari, the war cemetery, museum and its beautiful lake gardens.

Transportation up to the summit of Bukit Larut is by government Land Rover, for which a small fee is charged. In the olden days, pony back rides and sedan chairs were the only mode of transport up the hill. Today, 13km of tarred road takes you to the summit. The roads are still narrow and steep with 72 very sharp bends.

Among the many trails here, the Gunung Hijau trail is the best for bird watchers. It spirals up towards Gunung Hijau at 1,449m above sea level. On a clear day, you can see all of Taiping town and even the Perak coastline from this vantage point. For nature lovers, the Mountain Giant Fishtail Palm, wild orchids and many other exotic species can be found here. There are various bungalows and rest houses offering comfortable accommodation, most of them built about a century ago. The Bukit Larut Rest House serves local and western cuisine.

Ascending Bukit Larut

Situated about 290km from Kuala Lumpur and 9km from Taiping, Bukit Larut is accessible only via government vehicle, which is available daily during the following hours:

8.00am - 3.00pm

Depart to Bukit Larut (Every hour)

9.00am - 4.00pm

Depart from Bukit Larut (Every hour)

Bookings for accommodation can be made at the office at the foot of the hill.

Return fares

- Adult RM6
- Children under six years of age RM3

Practical Tips

Enchanting Penang Hill

Across the Straits of Malacca, you will find Penang Hill located on the island of Penang. Here you can ride on the funicular railway, explore enchanting nature trails, walk among 30-metre high trees, and glory in the gorgeous views of the island. Situated about 800m above sea level on the northern part of the island, Malaysia's oldest hill resort has much to offer in the way of its cool unpolluted air, historical heritage and environmental significance.

At the foot of the hill is the Penang Hill Railway, one of the world's oldest funicular systems. Built in 1897, but commissioned only in 1923, the railway has a track of about 2,007m ascending to a height of 710m above sea level. The pleasant ride up takes about 9 minutes. On the way up, look out for the various residences dotting the hill, the lush vegetation and occasional Macaque monkeys.

Upon reaching the summit, you will be rewarded with spectacular vistas of Penang Island. On a clear sunny day, the entire eastern half of the island and the mainland as well as the Straits of Malacca are visible. At the summit, a food court, fruit and souvenir stalls as well as a hotel can be found. The original funicular train is also on exhibit here.

Several private bungalows dot Penang Hill. Most of these Victorian-style buildings have stood the test of time because of the hardy materials used in their construction. Among these, stands the hill's oldest bungalow, 'Bel Retiro', the holiday residence of the Governor of Penang. Many of the hill's bungalows that were once open to the public, are now privately owned and are thus not accessible to outsiders anymore.

The Bellevue Hotel, the only remaining hotel on the hill, offers magnificent views of the island and its restaurant is quite popular among locals. The hotel's Aviary Garden boasts a unique collection of pheasants, pea fowls, crowned pigeons, parrots, hornbills, macaws, Bali mynahs and Nicobar pigeons. A wide collection of art works by local and regional artists is scattered throughout the hotel. Visitors interested in going for a buggy ride (6 persons per buggy) can contact the hotel (04-829 9500). This 15-minute ride takes one along scenic paths on Penang Hill to visit old private bungalows. The fare RM30 per buggy with driver.

Penang Hill also offers visitors various nature trails. The Penang Hill Forest Challenge trail comprising the jeep track and forest trail, begins from the Upper Station and ends at the Telok Bahang Recreation Park. The entire 11.3-kilometre route takes about six hours to complete.

If you fancy a cuppa, head for David Brown's Restaurant and Tea Terraces on Strawberry Hill. Savour delectable English cuisine as well as a selection of Penang specialities as you enjoy the old-world ambience. This charming restaurant is set in idyllic surroundings and is located about 30m from the upper station.

The best time to experience Penang Hill is at night when the island lights up and Penang turns into a dazzling jewel. So, take some time to visit Penang's myriad attractions.

The Kek Lok Si, Asia's largest Buddhist temple, just a stone's throw away from the foot of Penang Hill, is a good place to begin. Stroll through the picturesque Botanical Gardens or journey into the past at the many heritage sites in the city.

From its spectacular golden beaches to its evergreen hills, from its rich mix of modern and colonial architecture to its sizzling potpourri of tantalising cuisine and enchanting cultures, this Pearl of the Orient is a truly mesmerising tourist destination.

Invigorating Bukit Tinggi

Just an hour's drive from Kuala Lumpur, Berjaya Hills nestles amidst 16,000 acres of rugged hills surrounded by lush tropical rainforests. Here you will find a unique resort that captures the essence of different cultures of the world in a single destination. In the vicinity are other resorts such as the Selesa Resort and Janda Baik, a resort-cum-residential development.

Be it the picturesque, French-style Colmar Tropicale, a replica of the original 18th century Colmar Village in Alsace, France, or the Zen inspired Japanese Village, you will relish Berjaya Hills' interesting surroundings. Standing some 800m above sea level, Colmar Tropicale has retained the feel of its European counterpart in its architecture. Its tastefully decorated rooms are all clustered around Colmar Square, a cobblestone courtyard, where outdoor dining and street performances take place. Nice touches like a wishing well, a cuckoo clock tower and a viewing tower add to the French flavour.

A casual stroll along the same courtyard will render more French-style attractions. The La Cignone restaurant offering authentic French cuisine, the 24-hour coffee house Le Blason with its international buffet, the La Flamme Sidewalk Deli affording pizza and pasta as well as the Le Poulet Roti with its roasted chicken delights, will definitely whet your appetite in the cool highland air. On top of this, there are the La Boulangerie bakery, the Le Vin wine and cigar place and the Haagen Dazs ice cream corner to tempt you. The Les Cadeaux French souvenir shop and La Lavande Creations craft centre complete this pretty picture. The Chateau Spa & Organic Wellness Resort, a French themed boutique hotel and spa modelled after an 18th century medieval castle in France, is also among Bukit Tinggi's charming attractions.

Some 1,000m above sea level is a painstakingly conceived, environmentally friendly Japanese Village. The village setting comprises the Japanese Tea House, the Ryo Zan Tei Japanese Restaurant, the Botanical Gardens, Tatami Spa, Ume Tatami suites and a Japanese souvenir shop. Here you can experience a traditional Japanese tea ceremony, feed the 'Koi' or Japanese carp thriving in the natural freshwater streams and pools, indulge in a luxuriating hot bath at the Tatami Spa, revel in the serenity of the exclusive Tatami suites, or stroll through the peaceful Botanical Gardens. The tranquillity and sheer beauty of these settings will thoroughly invigorate and inspire you.

The undulating terrain of the 18-hole golf course at Berjaya Hills Golf & Country Club, offers one of the most challenging and picturesque golfing experiences in Malaysia. The golf club is equipped with luxuriously furnished suites, golfers' rooms, a full-fledged sports and recreational facility, as well as a paintball tag range. The nearby Meranti Park Suites provides additional accommodation. At the resort's Rabbit Park, there are over 200 furry rabbits, which you can cuddle and feed. A deer sanctuary, donkey rides, and archery and painting sessions are sure to captivate the children.

Travelling to the top

Located 10km off the East-West Karak Highway, Bukit Tinggi is a mere 60 minutes' drive from Kuala Lumpur. The turn-off for Berjaya Hills is few kilometres down the highway after the exit points to Janda Baik and the Selesa Resort. Although there are some precarious bends, the drive up to the resort is a pleasant one with well-paved roads. Lush flora and fauna surround the route. Berjaya Hills operates a shuttle service to ferry passengers between KL Plaza and Berjaya Times Square in the city, right up to Colmar Tropicale and back.

One of the highlights of this resort is its horse trail rides. Be it the adventurous Creek and River Rides or romantic Picnic Rides, a team of certified instructors and professional trainers will help in choosing the right horse and guide you on your trails. Choose from the resort's majestic Quarter horses, Australian stock, Arab-Draft Cross, Appaloosa, tough Standard Bred or Palominos as you catch the stunning sunset amidst the serene surroundings of Bukit Tinggi.

Scenic Kinabalu Park

On the rainforest-clad island of Borneo, you will find Kinabalu Park, Malaysia's first World Heritage Site and home to Southeast Asia's tallest peak, Mount Kinabalu. Revel in the wealth of rare flora and fauna and spectacular waterfalls that seem to cascade from heaven itself. From the giant Rafflesia flower and many nocturnal creatures, to the spectacular trek through primordial jungle up misty peaks, and finally above the clouds to catch an awe-inspiring sunrise – this is the one adventure you will never forget.

Kinabalu Park, a scenic two-hour drive from Kota Kinabalu, the capital of Sabah, is a popular retreat from the hustle and bustle of city life. The park covers a staggering area of 754 sq km, has four climatic zones and also one of the richest collections of flora in the world. The majestic Mount Kinabalu is its main attraction.

The KadazanDusun, Sabah's largest ethnic group, believe that the mountain is the sacred resting ground of the spirits of their ancestors. The KadazanDusun practise shifting cultivation on the hill slopes and serve as reliable guides and porters to visitors trekking up Mount Kinabalu.

The gateway to the mountain is the Kinabalu Park Headquarters, situated 1,563m on its southern boundary. A variety of accommodation, restaurants and an exhibition centre are available here. This is also where you pay the entrance fee to the park and register if you are an overnight visitor or a climber. Popular attractions here are the Mount Kinabalu Botanical Garden and the Mountain Garden. After viewing the slide shows on the park's rich history and biodiversity, you can explore the gardens on your own, or join the park's naturalist on a guided walk.

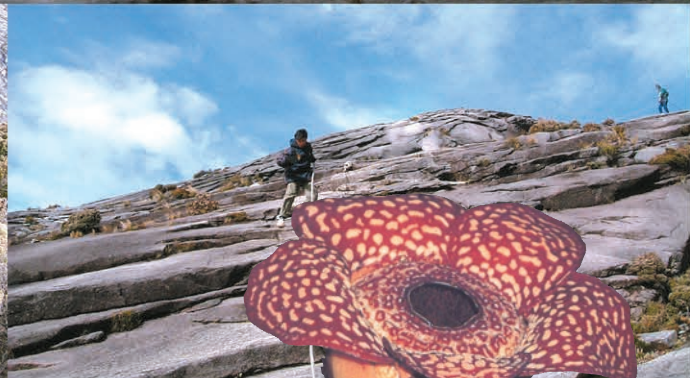

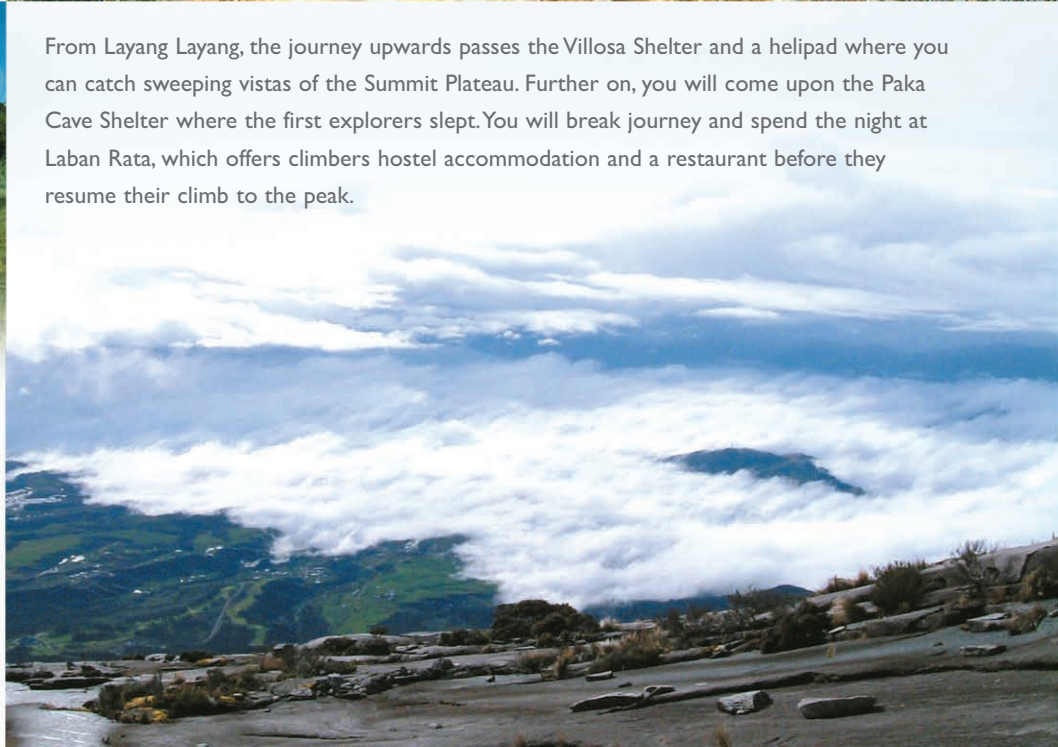

You do not need any real experience in mountain climbing to conquer the highest peak in Southeast Asia, but it pays to be fit. While the summit of Mount Kinabalu can be reached in two days, a three-day climb is less strenuous and allows you more time to indulge in the natural beauty of the surroundings. However, champion mountain runners at the annual Mount Kinabalu International Climbathon, proclaimed the 'toughest mountain race in the world', have been known to run up and down the mountain in under three hours!

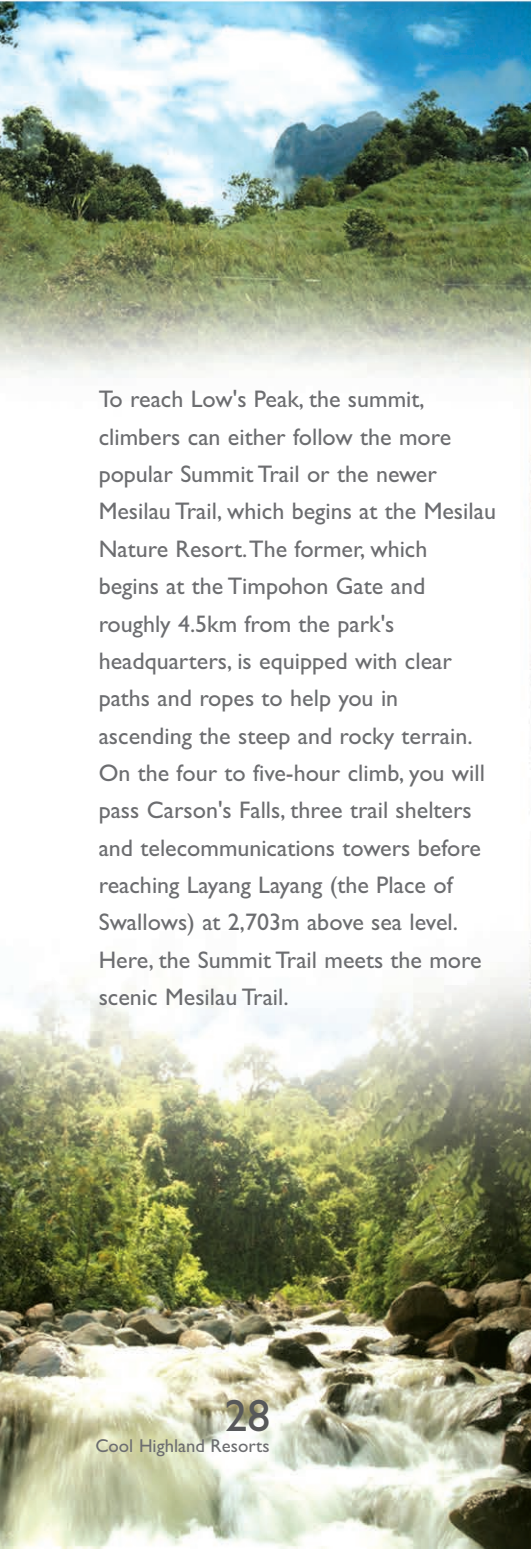

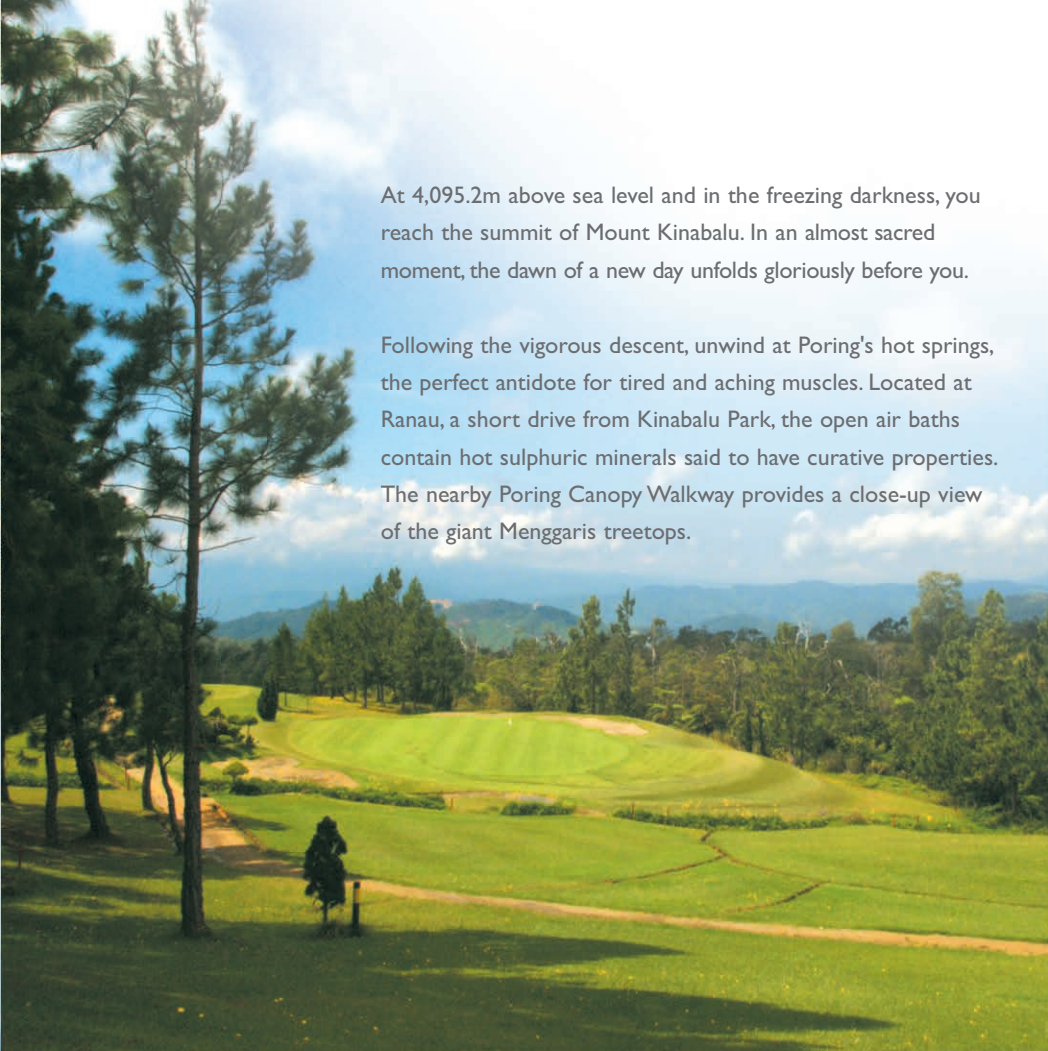

From Layang Layang, the journey upwards passes the Villosa Shelter and a helipad where you can catch sweeping vistas of the Summit Plateau. Further on, you will come upon the Paka Cave Shelter where the first explorers slept. You will break journey and spend the night at Laban Rata, which offers climbers hostel accommodation and a restaurant before they resume their climb to the peak.

To reach Low's Peak, the summit, climbers can either follow the more popular Summit Trail or the newer Mesilau Trail, which begins at the Mesilau Nature Resort. The former, which begins at the Timpohon Gate and roughly 4.5km from the park's headquarters, is equipped with clear paths and ropes to help you in ascending the steep and rocky terrain. On the four to five-hour climb, you will pass Carson's Falls, three trail shelters and telecommunications towers before reaching Layang Layang (the Place of Swallows) at 2,703m above sea level. Here, the Summit Trail meets the more scenic Mesilau Trail.

After a short night's rest, you need to be ready by 3.00am in order to catch the sunrise at the peak. It takes about three hours to reach the peak and there are ladders and ropes to help you over the steeper terrain. En route, marvel at the rugged landscape of cliffs, gorges, gulleys, plateaus and precipices.

At 4,095.2m above sea level and in the freezing darkness, you reach the summit of Mount Kinabalu. In an almost sacred moment, the dawn of a new day unfolds gloriously before you.

Following the vigorous descent, unwind at Poring's hot springs, the perfect antidote for tired and aching muscles. Located at Ranau, a short drive from Kinabalu Park, the open air baths contain hot sulphuric minerals said to have curative properties. The nearby Poring Canopy Walkway provides a close-up view of the giant Menggaris treetops.

Those who prefer more down-to-earth attractions can trek through the lowland forests, head for the waterfalls, or explore the Tropical Garden where deer rest in their natural habitat. You may even chance upon the world's largest flower, the exotic Rafflesia. From the Poring Butterfly Farm and the Poring Orchid Conservation Farm, to the lofty Mount Kinabalu Golf Club at Kundasang, there is much to see and do at Kinabalu Park.

Up to the Peak

Kinabalu Park is situated about 90km from the international gateway of Kota Kinabalu. It is accessible by car, van, coach, four-wheel drive, taxi and even chartered helicopter. There are also regular buses and minibuses plying between Kota Kinabalu and the park. About five kilometres from the park's main entrance, you will find the town of Kundasang, home to the local Dusun farmers. Here you will find stalls selling everything from vegetables to souvenirs and handicraft items.

Practical Tips

All climbers up Mount Kinabalu must engage the services of a registered guide on their climb. You can hire a guide and porter by registering at the park headquarters managed by Sabah Parks. Walk-in bookings at the park are subject to availability, so pre-booking is advisable.
